Right for you, that is.

It's your stereo set-up. Tailor it to fit your own personal sound requirements — starting with the receiver. Pioneer makes it easy for you to pick one with just the amount of power and sophistication you want.

SX-5530 - no watts wasted. This practical, dependable 20W x 2RMS stereo receiver proves that power is not always the answer when it comes to good sound. Featuring a FM MPX circuit of the advanced PLL (Phase-Lock-Loop) type... a particularly precise phono equalizer... a direct-coupled OCL power amplifier... plus a dual meter tuning system with FM-linear dial scale. Ideal for the average-sized listening room.

SX-7730 - a 35W x 2RMS stereo receiver that assures you the extra power you want for extra versatility and performance — without adding watts you don't need. The FM front end is equipped with a frequency-linear 4-gang variable capacitor and dual-gate MOS FET... two stereo pairs of tape deck connections, with monitoring and tape-to-tape duplication facilities... plus all standard features found on the SX-5530.

SX-9930 - the all-out 70W x 2RMS stereo receiver for those who take their sound very seriously. Advanced features like Pioneer's twin tone controls (so you can boost or cut frequency output in low and high ranges without altering midrange response)... parallel push-pull OCL circuitry for wide frequency response... In addition to items found on the SX-7730 and SX-5530. Equipped to handle two stereo turntables, two microphones — plus any auxiliary source you want to connect.

Specs sound good? The equipment sounds better. Check it all out at your nearest Audio Club or other facility — and see if one of these great receivers doesn't belong in your custom-made stereo system. We'll rely on your ears. It's an old Pioneer custom.
